Mary Haller

Winner of the 2011 "Hitsville" contest in Nashville and Berkleemusic's 2009 Paul Simon Celebrity Scholarship, Mary Haller has in a few short years gone from being one of Boston's most respected arts publicists to a respected artist in her own right.

With one foot in Boston and one in Nashville, Haller combines her musical background with her love of language in crafting songs aimed at the commercial country and pop markets.

Haller is a classically-trained musician (keyboard, flute) who performed actively for many years as a flutist in ensembles at the University of Michigan (Symphony Band, Wind Ensemble, Marching Band) and in Boston-based orchestras. Representing the state of Michigan as a member of the 1979 McDonald's All-American High School Band, Haller performed in venues ranging from Carnegie Hall to the Tournament of Roses Parade. Haller has also studied West African drumming.

As a writer and publicist, Haller has worked for a number of Boston-area arts and educational institutions, including the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), where she was Director of Arts Communication for sixteen years.
